THE DOCTRESS WAS A MAN.

Man Who Masqueraded in Woman's Clothes-He Sold Corn Cure Without

Special to the Scranton Tribune. Hallstead, Dec. 22.—Considerable ex-citement was created in this quiet village on Friday evening by the arrest of a mysterious man who has been masquerading in woman's clothes, provid-ing afflicted humanity hereabouts with a never-failing corn cure. The ped-dler struck a popular chord in the hearts of Hallstead's citizens and dis-posed of quantities of medicine sufficlent to render the town cornless for generations to come. After a successful day's work she, or he, sought the boarding house of Mrs. Ettle Vance and paid for a night's lodging from the generous supply of halves and quar-ters that fingled in her purse. Mrs. Vance assigned the corn doctress to sleeping apartments and returned to her household duties and general medi-tation. As the corn angel sunk to pleasant dreams upon one of Mrs. Vance's newly-renovated feather-beds, the landlady's suspicions were aroused by a report that reached her ears to the effect that others had had doubts as to the sex of the mysterious woman who had departed from the time-honored custom and sold corn cure without ac-companying stanzas of poetry. She finally went up stairs and listened at the door of the lodger's room. Her sus-picions were confirmed by the resonant snore that broke the stillness of the hight. She was convinced that there was something wrong with her mys-terious visitor. She therefore deterious visitor. She therefore de-manded admittance. This was mod-estly refused. The landlady then ral-lied her male boarders and stormed the bedroom. The door was forced open and one of the boarders rushed in and caught the lodger by the neck and held on until a constable arrived on the scene. The lodger whose slumbers had thus been rudely disturbed was taken over to Great Bend and lodged in the lockup. At the bastile the ped-dler admitted his disguise and said that he had assumed it in order to more dler admitted his disguise and said that he had assumed it in order to more readily dispose of the corn cure. He stated that he had been on the road for about three weeks and had worked Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and other towns down the valley, and that Mrs. Vance was the first inquisitive woman he had encountered.

He persuaded the family to go with him in his skiff to his house. They all started—John Heltman, August Longnecker, Henry Longnecker, Thomas Calwell, W. Meadows and wife, and a stepson of James Blankinship, named Martin.

The current was strong, the skiff struck a tree and split open. Those in the boat were drowned, except Thomas Calwell, who clung to a tree from about 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock last evening, when he was rescued, more dead than alive. John Heltman also held on to the tree with Calwell, but about an hour before Calwell was rescued he became discouraged and attempted to swim to shore and was drowned. None of the bodies has been recovered.

WORK OF BEARS IN LONDON

They Raid American Securities and Make Big Profits.

BRITISH INVENTORS SCARED

they Are Frightened Into Parting with Their Holdings at a Sacrifice of Wild Yarns of America's Shaky Financial Condition.

New York, Dec. 22.—According to a special cable dispatch to the Sun, the financial and commercial war which England has virtually declared against the United States is being pushed rapidly. Friday's wild rush to get rid of American securities almost at any price continued yesterday till nearly the close of the market. The impression still seems to prevail among English investors that by this mad conduct they are inflicting terrible punishment upon America for her temerity in opposing the British lion. Next week they will probably realize that it week they will probably realize that it is a peculiar sort of revenge which offers to give back to the offending individuals at thirty to forty per cent. discount property which had been purchased from them.

The attacks upon every line of American credit are now indiscriminate and unsparing. President Cleveland is denounced in language which is childishly abusive and unreasoning. He is the best hated man in London, an eminence of which he may well be proud. Still best hated man in London, an eminence of which he may well be proud. Still it is universally declared that there will be no war, and that there is no danger of such a calamity. The excuse everywhere given for boy-cotting all things American is that the whole financial and commercial sys-tem of the United States is intrin-sically rotten, and that he country is bankrupt. The private English in-vestor who is the real victim of all this trouble unfortunately believes this irresponsible Stock Exchange gabble and sacrifices his holdings. The very peo-ple who gave him this bad advice today began to profit by it in common with the Americans who were tempted to buy by the bargains so strangely offered. London bears reaped a rich harvest. In the last hour's dealings vesterday afternoon their purchases in yesterday afternoon their purchases in taking profits caused a recovery of two or three points in some stocks.

It required only a visit to Throgmorton street Friday night and yesterday morning to make it clear how artificial was the panic. There is no end of noise, wild rushing to and fro, and waving of warlike news bulletins. But the volume of business done was actually small. The crash was chiefly confined to American stocks, whereas if there had been a genuine fear of hostilities the declines would have been just as great in all the English securities.

The Object in View. The Object in View.

The policy followed by the real leaders of the financial world in the past four days is easy to understand. They undoubtedly believe, most of them, that if a sharp touch of disaster be administered to the American business world it will cause a revolt in popular sentiment in that country and compel the All goods delivered promptly

The transfer of the country and compel the president to withdraw his menaces. It is worth while to suffer themselves some inconvenience and temporary loss if they can produce this effect. Sentiment, ordinarily, has no place in financial affairs, and it is not playing as large a part in this as perhaps appears; but resentment has certainly had its influence in some of the events of the past three days. past three days.

One strong reason for this is the fact that the English people of all classes continue to believe that President Cleveland is not sincere in his action or that he is controlled by unworthy motives. The man who more than all others is responsible for the existence. others is responsible for the existence of this mistaken impression in this country is Mr. Chauncey M. Depew. He is the best American in private life among Englishmen. His name and his words are before the English people more than those of any other American citizen. They regard his sentiments as representative. All the papers in Lon-ion quoted him as saying on Wednes-President Cleveland has taken the wind out of the sails of other political leaders in this country, and has be-come simply, in one night, the only pos-sible candidate whom the Democrats can nominate for president."

ism to meet the exigencles of domestic politics and personal ambition. Mr. Depew will probably deny that his words are capable of such a con-struction, but so they are understood by the English people, and very bitter are their minds in consequence. There would be far less disposition to resort to every possible retaliation, fi-nancial and in other directions, if this belief that England is merely being belief that England is merely being flouted for a secondary purpose did not exist. Several American writers in the Times and other papers are endeavoring to correct this impression, and with some effect. Efforts also are being made to give Englishmen an adequate idea how completely the Monroe doctrine is accepted as a political axiom by the American people. If it were not for the American people. If it were not for the Englishman's lack of imagination and insular ability to put himself in another's place he would easily be made to appreciate the American contention. It is satisfactory to note that the flippant, jocose reception of Mr. Cleve-land's message which was first mani-fested in certain quarters has entirely disappeared. There are some signs also of an honest desire to know more about of an honest desire to know more about the American case. The papers now print maps, arguments, and other evi-dence in unlimited quantities bearing upon the merits of the boundary dis-

Two representatives of the Archbald electric road were in town last Wednes-day evening consulting with some of our city fathers in regards to a right of way through our borough. The fair of the fire laddies was well attended again last Thursday evening. The short but interesting programme was well rendered. Two solos rendered by Alfred Williams, the eleven-year-old boy, of Olyphant, was worthy of special mention and were well applauded. A delegation from the William Walker Hose company, of Mayfield, was in attendance. The door prize, No. 597, an elegant parlor lamp, was won by Wafie Brong, the Peckville Tribune carrier. The handsome tollet set was won by Mrs. George B. Reed, and a seck of flour by William Warfield. Several valuable articles will be chanced off again this evening.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a large crowd again attended the fair and trades display of the hose company Saturday evening. The boys are highly pleased at the liberal patronage that they are receiving each evening. The contestants are meeting with very good success, and the amount which will be realized from them will swell the gross receipts. The contest for the whip between George Cool and William Williams was won by Mr. Williams, he having $56.90 and Mr. Cool $5.60. After the close of the contest. Chairman Purdy, in behalf of the hose company, asked Mr. Williams to become an honorary member of the hose company, asked Mr. Williams to become an honorary member set was won by Mrs. William Bell. No. 49 was the lucky number. The lap robe was won on ticket No. 87, and was held by Frank Pickering. The quilt presented to the hose company by the Ladies' Ald Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, was won on ticket No. 120, and was held by H. V. McCloskey, of Jermyn. Charles Harding won the doll and E. M. Barnes won the placque, and John Grisdale won the*rug. The door prize was an express wagon and was drawn on ticket No. 1292, held by William Pollard. The sum realized up to this writing is about $575. The fair will continue this cvning, when the contest for the gold watch between Miss Belie Wallace and Miss Vinnie Jenkins will be brought to a close. The gun contest will also be decided this evening; all other articles not disposed of will be sold at a reduction.
